- (ii) Would it not be better to go easy in the lower forms and speed up later than to do too much earlier on with the later burden of revising what was never properly assimilated?

- (iv) Is the syllabus in sufficient detail? Is there contained in it enough to guide inexperienced and/or untrained teachers in the preparation of lesson notes?

Bullying, lying and cheating for selfish reasons, misappropriation, lack of esprit de corps unseemly behaviour, wilful defiance of authority, are examples of what the Prefects' Council will deal with.

The spirit in which these cases are to be dealt with will be reformatory and not retaliatory. There will be no ganging up against any one. The purpose of the Council is to set the tone and to enforce its maintenance.

School policy, staff and School administration are matters outside the scope of the Council.

The Council will meet once a week, on Sundays, after breakfast. It may meet at any time in an emergency.

The Council may on its own initiative, or on a representation made to it by a child consider any matter jeopardising the accepted code of honour and conduct. Proceedings of the Council may be open or secret as the Council decides. The decision of the Council must be by unanimous vote. In case the conduct of a member of the Council is under consideration, such member will not vote.

No punishment will be awarded by the Council unless the offender and witnesses if any have been given a hearing.
